
New install

Posted by funinthemud - 2008/06/23 23:19

First off I want to say this looks like it will be a great add to my site,,(once i get it working right :blink:)

I have never used anything like this before and have some issues,once installed which went fine..I get several errors on the moolet on my site see herefuninthemud.net not sure what i missed but any help would be great just steer me there and i will try and fix it...I also noticed my photos went by-by not sure if installing this did anything but that is another issue....

Re:New install

Posted by spiney - 2008/06/24 15:16

Here is your error:
MySQL-Link

That says that your hosting provider will not allow the AJAX call to log into the database with the joomla database log in variables. That is a setting they have that we can not get around. Most providers allow this but some seem to be tightening up.

You can get around this by editing the database calls in the moolet files to have a username and password directly. There are several posts on this forum where folks have explained how this is done.

Sorry about that

Re:New install

Posted by funinthemud - 2008/06/28 07:49

Thx for the reply I will see what I can find, If u know of any links that will help to point me in the right direction that would be great also because I would like to get this corrected soon. I really dont want to spend alot of time searching forums when I could be working on my site if u know what I mean...again thx for the info....

Re:New install

Posted by funinthemud - 2008/07/10 04:41

I have spent alot of time searching but not sure really what to look for let alone how to do this mod u mention again any help pointing me in the direction would be great.....unsure:

Re:New install

Posted by funinthemud - 2008/07/10 04:41

I have spent alot of time searching but not sure really what to look for let alone how to do this mod u mention again any help pointing me in the direction would be great.....unsure:

Re:New install

Posted by funinthemud - 2008/07/10 04:41

I have spent alot of time searching but not sure really what to look for let alone how to do this mod u mention again any help pointing me in the direction would be great.....unsure:

=====

Re:New install

Posted by funinthemud - 2008/07/10 04:55

Sorry I dont know how this left so many of the same replies...

=====