
Any chance of some flashchat integration?

Would be great if some of the online modules could have optional flashchat integration added - ie some type of indicator to sat that user is currently in chat. Is it possible?

This is technically possible. However it is a fair amount of work. Not sure anyone would take that on as an open source project?

Even if you used an open source pre-built chat, you are talking about the ajax calls in these moolets going into the chat component, making connections and so on.

I have not searched for this lately. If you done a google search to see if there is anything else out there close to this?
