

---

VancouverOnlineMedia - Moo\'s Online

Posted by sstark - 2007/08/23 21:18

---

I love this website, very nice and creative... been using it as an example in my class.

Vancouver Online Media .com is using Moo's Online!

I had to edit the files, however, to get the database to properly connect... it was trying to login as nobody with no pass to an unknown table! ha.

thanks for the great work, looking forward to the release of users by tag name!! :)

---

Re:VancouverOnlineMedia - Moo\'s Online

Posted by brian_williford - 2007/08/24 00:12

---

thanks for the kind words, I will go check out your link can you post back the database change you made as there are several other users with the same issue

brian

---

Re:VancouverOnlineMedia - Moo\'s Online

Posted by sstark - 2007/08/24 00:50

---

I didn't properly fix this problem... what's going on is you're using php mysql connections instead of using the Joomla $database object. I had to edit your mod_moolets_online.inc.php from line 65:

```
global $mosConfig_user, $mosConfig_db, $mosConfig_host, $mosConfig_password, $mosConfig_dbprefix;
```

to:

```
global $mosConfig_user, $mosConfig_db, $mosConfig_host, $mosConfig_password, $mosConfig_dbprefix;
$mosConfig_user = "user";
$mosConfig_db = "database name";
$mosConfig_host = "localhost";
$mosConfig_password = "password";
$mosConfig_dbprefix = "jos_";
```

Post edited by: sstark, at: 2007/08/24 00:51

---

Re:VancouverOnlineMedia - Moo\'s Online

Posted by brian_williford - 2007/08/24 01:19

---

oh I see,
that is a tad unsafe and would require other users to fill in that code.

Seems with server with a certain php setting the joomla globals to not get read in that file loaded in with ajax.

I will keep diggin until I figure it out thanks!

