Hi Brian,

Not sure there is a board for the recent visitors module yet, but thought it appropriate to post here, as I believe I have a similar issue as the person in thsi thread.

OK, so the module loads great - always a good start :)

Users with avatars show in the module - great !

Pending images show in the module - even better !

Here's the but (and there's always one), users with no avatar don't show i.e it doesn't pick up the nophoto.jpg in the specified area.

Checked the path, permissions etc... all ok. So I pointed the 'no avatar' parameter in the module to a completely different area and image file. Again no show. The minute you give the users an avatar it does show.

I'm no coder but it would point to a path issue if the other two types of avatar 'pending & path' show on the site.

My site is on a local machine at the moment, if needs be I can upload it for you to see.

Thanks, great job, and I'm wondering what your next project is going to bring us :)

One last thing, not related to the image 'no show' (I think), but on checking the site with firefox developer browser there are several errors, as follows:

Error: this.element.setStyle is not a function
Source File: modules/mod_moolet_recent_visitors/mootools.v1.11.js
Line: 3

Thanks

oooo, I am pooped. I will check this out in the morning. I will tell you that it was my intention that if you did not have an avatar you are not allowed on the block, as I am tired of all the empty faces on this site and others.

I guess I could add a switch for other to turn that on. I would be like me to not have that feature but left the path code in the settings.

will get back to you wednesday when I can think again

Brian,

Know the feeling well.. it's 02:30 here and I'm still at it... body clock screwed !

I can see your point, and I am probably as guilty as the next man for not uploading a picture !

I guess though in a true users style site (not a techy site like this) it would hopefully encourage users to upload their images.. well that's my thinking.

Else I guess if everyone didn't have an avatar then this module (as you are planning it) could make it look like there weren't that many visitors to the site.

I'm probably talking out of my * but then it is late and I am seeing two of everything... time to switch off I guess !

Cheers

Lee

Blimey Brian, you have been busy !!!

Since my last post this forum has got a new gizmo... which is very slick - must try that !

Anyway back to this thread, was wondering whether you were going to update the recent visitors to show just that (regardless of whether they are registered or not).

Would defo be a good idea for lesser known community sites starting up (else the module could look rather sad and empty). Or at least have the option to select all or just registered ?

I'll let you get your head around this thread again, and invite you to comment.

Thanks

Lee

Lee,
Lets try this. Saturday is Brian day, according to those around me. That means I do what I want and have fun. Lately it has been moolets. However coming back to these threads are not fun because it is not enough for some of these kidz that I give away the stuff. They want 4 hours of my time working on there server to. Then I dont give it then they get mad. So the forums get dark and I aviod them saturday. Then the requests dont get done.

So I set up a happy one called suggestions. I advise everyone copy there happy improvement thoughts out of the dark area and paste them into the suggestion area, which I do check on saturday. But there is never anytning there if you paste this over to there I will probably hit it saturday

brian
