
Multiple "Notice: Undefined variable: xxx" Errors.

Posted by lord_lethris - 2008/01/15 12:44

Right then...

I has checked the Mootools version. - OK
I have checked the module Paths. - OK
I have tried "Ajax post" instead of "Get" - OK
I have tweaked and played till my eyes bled - OK

This module still doesn't work.

The site it is "currently" on is ->

<http://ravens-lair.co.uk>

and here is my Sites Basic info ->

PHP built On: Linux xxxxxxxx 2.4.21-47.ELsmp #1 SMP Wed Jul 5 20:38:41 EDT 2006 i686
Database Version: 5.0.22
PHP Version: 5.2.3
Web Server: Apache/1.3.33
WebServer to PHP interface: apache
Joomla! Version: Joomla! 1.0.14 RC1 Stable 13 January 2008 22:00 UTC
Fireboard Version: FireBoard 1.0.4 Stable 23 December 2007 01:00 UTC

The Errors that im getting are multiple "Notice: Undefined variable: xxxx" errors and "Notice: Use of undefined constant xxxx" errors.

Although this site is now live, I have left the module published so you can see the errors. The module is currently bottom left, and out of the way.

Hope thats enough info for ya.

Lord,
Thanks for all that info, very informative!

Yout template is using "moo.fx.js" which is what became mooTools. Unfortunatly you can not run more then one version of mooTools on the same page. I would try commenting out the moo.fx.js and the moo.fx.pack.js to see of the moolet loads. If it does you would probably need to rewrite whatever functions call those two files as many of them have been depreciated.

Right Oh...

removed all references to "moo.fx.js" and "moo.fx.pack.js". It still don't work.

I have even changed to a basic template.

Any other thoughts?

Also, THIS guy is using the same template as me, AND mootools 1.1 on the same page... ;) (you may have to switch templates using the template switcher on his site to see.)

Hey, that worked, we can now see some new errors and the moolet is starting to kick in. We need to do some client work no here, if you can turn this back in in about 12 hours, or 8:00 PM Eastern Standard Tlme US I can look more at this tonight.

thanks

Ooo and my other site is having Exactly the same errors ;)

<http://demi-gods.co.uk/>

I have moved the module to the forum section on both sites so it doesn't interfere with the homepages.

Right,
As that error is a hosting issue these two sites are probably on the same provider. You got past the template error and now you are into a hosting company has the security to tight issue.

Most times those can not be resolved outside of moving to another provider.

MMmmm.. they don't like like hosting errors to me.

the top three are variables that can probably be edited manually, and the rest look like a Day Month and Year issue to me, which again could probably be manually edited.

And Im guessing the last set are "time" and a few more Variables that I can manually add.

I went back the the Module was removed. What happens on some shared servers is they do not allow the language file to get included on the AJAX call. so some variables to not get defined.

the modual is in the "forum" sections on both my sites.... I put it there for now, so it didn't interfer with the homepage.

http://ravens-lair.co.uk/index.php?option=com_fireboard&Itemid=38

Is there anything we can do?

hey, it does not looks good. If you hit the moolet file directy and look at the bottom you can see what I was saying. The php settings will not allow the file include needed to run on the page that is AJAX in:

http://demi-gods.co.uk/modules/mod_moolet_online_fb/mod_moolet_online_fb.inc.php

Can you go into:

mod_moolet_online_fb/mod_moolet_online_fb.inc.php

comment out this line

require_once($mosConfig_absolute_path."/". $moolet_language_path);
```

Then see what happens.

Okay,
Then the hosting companies php.ini server settings are set up in such a way the the MooTools AJAX call itselt can not pass the basic variables. This is the first time we have ever seen this.

It is safe to say this module will not work on anysite in your providers network.

Sorry man...

:huh: I guess there's nothing we can do then...

Thank you for your query

Unfortunately for both security and performance reasons we are unable to change server settings, apologies for any inconvenience.

Kind Regards,

And this is a host that supports Joomla. Makes me wonder what there going to do if the next release of joomla includes AJAX. :blink:

Eeeek Dubble post...

And why does <http://www.clockerz.org/forum/Smileys/default/omelet.gif> come up as :blink:

Me thinks you has a script protection! tags I think, I cant remember but i've seen it before. there is a fix for it in the "bestofjoomla" forum yea, this happend last time I upgraded Fireboard. I am going to do a clean install soon and them I will deal with the.

The AJAX itself is not the issue. The real issue is all the crazy things I am doing on the page the AJAX brings in to make the avatar members and the image update. There are a lot of AJAX apps that will work on your host.

I may also some day find a better way to do the cool things that I do.

Maybe some day...
